Offer Three Plans To Get Bonus Funds

Lay Proposals Before The House Ways And Means Committee.

Washington, Dec. 22.-Three plans for raising revenue to pay a soldier bonus will be laid before the house ways and means committe when congress reconvenes Jan. 3 with the expectation that a compensation bill will be framed before February.

Members of the committee, it was learned today, have reached the conclusion that any bonus bill reported to the house must carry its own levies to meet the obligations which it creates. With this in mind, the following plans will be offered:

1-Manufacturers' and business ales' tax, with tax on imports. 2-Special ta xon legalized sales of

Ohio's Game Preserve

WHILE many other states have been busy discussing the issue of establishing game preserves in their hill sections, Ohio has gone forward, employing action rather than argument. A tract of 10,000 acres in Scioto county has been inspected and approved and Gov. Davis has instructpd the officials of the state to go ahead. The land will be surveyed and appraised and the state will institute proceedings to acquire it by appropriation in the name of the state and for the benefit of the public, As quickly as the legal proceedings can be completed the state will become the owner of its first game preserve.

The tract is located back among the many hills in Scioto county, has abundance of woodland and waterways, so there may be cover for the birds and animals with which it will be stocked, and with water to make possible large operations in propagating fish. It will make an ideal game preserve, a place where hunters may have a few days' sport each season that will be filled with pleas-

For years there has been talk in the state about the desirability of establishing preserves. Ohio has an abundance of land admirably suited for that purpose, and largely worthless for other purposes. Lawmakers have discussed it and sportsmen and others have given it strong approval, but nothing was done to put the plan in operation. Gov. Davis paid g visit to the land in question, the selection having been made by the state fish and game department. Then came the order to go ahead and get the preserve established

This will not be the only preserve Chio will have, as there are plans for large areas in other parts of the state to be taken over and developed for that purpose. The hilly sections are ideal for the purpose and the land may be purchased at a nominal price. Most of the areas in question are of no productive value now, while under the development of game preserves they may be a source of pride and large value to the state.

Burdens Of Christmas proper to think of Christmas as a season of joy and festivity, there is another feature of the season that is entitled to some attenion. Christmas rings its burdens and its sorrows to some and an appreciation of that fact by the public will help lighten them where they fall.

This is the last week before Christmas and the burdens are heavy on many shoulders here in Salem and other cities. The salespeople in the stores and shops know what these burdens are. The shopping of the last week is done in a hurry. That means extra labor and extra wear on the clerks and salespeople. Then many shoppers are hurried and at times throughtless and inconsiderate and that means unnecessary wear and annoyance to the salespeople.

The delivery boys from the stores. the men who are handling the parcel post and other Christmas mail deliveries, the messenger boys and expressmen, all are familiar with the burdens and sorrows of the few days preceding the great festival of peace and good will.

What a joy it would be to sales-Teople if all shoppers were considerate and kind during the hurry and bustle of the last few days of shopping, if they were appreciative of the many steps and extra efforts of the delivery boys, of the trials that belong to the mail and express men. Shoppers can conserve their own pleasure and contribute to others by a little consideration shown in the busy season for the people who serve them, who wish to serve them quickly and pleasantly, and who would appreciate help from those they serve Quarter to Spank Pirate.

At the junction of two roads in New Jersey Sunday motorists have halted in either indignation or amusement when a small girl, wearing a policeman's hat, hailed them and demanded a fine of 10 cents for speeding.

"The men generally laugh and surrender," said the owner of a country store nearby. "And most of the time the women do, too. But the other day three girls came by. They'd been held up three times before at the same place. This time they reached out, pulled the youngster in the ear and spanked her. Then they had to make it up with a quarter."

ECONOMIC EFFECT

SKILLED WORKMEN WOULD FIND EMPLOYMENT IN OTHER CON-STRUCTIVE FIELDS.

PROBLEM IN PREPAREDNESS

How Could These Ship-Builders Be Collected Again Quickly in Emergency?-Scrapping of Unfinished Vessels Will Be Expensive.

Washington.-What will be the effect on the economic condition of the countries generally if the proposed reduction in naval armaments goes into effect? This is a rather hard question to answer today, and yet the economists already are trying to give it an answer.

If there is to be, as is generally supposed, a ten-year navy building holiday it means, of course, that for ten years warship construction, except for a few replacements, will be at a standstill. This fact carries with it the other fact that a good many skilled workmen will be thrown out of employment by the naval holiday. thirsts, there wasn't the demand for These skilled workers, however, it is said, before they have been out of jobs any great length of time, readily enough can find employment in other constructive fields where their skill will stand them in good stead and in good wages.

There is another side to this question which reflects that phase of human nature which must be considered when arms reductions are given The First Application Makes Skin thought. If most of the skilled warship makers go into other employments for ten years, or even for a shorter period, and get well settled in these employments, how can they be collected again quickly in case some nation, despite the conference and everything else, starts on the war-consideration not only men for the perhaps than that of any other nation druggist. except possibly Russia. It is perhaps natural, therefore, that Great Britain has brought to the attention of the conferees the subject of the discharge of thousands of battleship-yard workers, and has suggested that some kind of a provision be made for the future of these men.

Under the proposed naval reduction plan there can be replacements of battleships as the older ships become obsolete, but the replacements will not be many, nor can they be made for some time to come. The United States has a large number of ships now under construction, and it is proposed to scrap them. This will bring about an at least temporarily unfortunate condition in certain lines of trade. This matter is giving some concern to the officials of all the governments here represented.

The scrapping of the ships now under construction is going to cost the United States government some money, a considerable sum probably. It is understood that, where contracts have been entered into and material has been supplied, the government must live up to its contracts and pay for some work which has not been done, and also for some material which cannot be used for any other purpose than that for which it was intended.

It is not believed that the scrapping of the American ships will affect materially the personnel of the navy forces. There is enough work left in various land fields for all the officers who will be detached from ship duty. The enlisted personnel of the navy is none too great today for the ships which will remain in commission. The chances are that the navy personnel will be kept at its present numbers for a long time to come, but unless war breaks out it probably never will be necessary to increase it.

Old Vessels to Be Scrapped.

Many of the old vessels of the type which fought so valiantly in the Spanish war days are to be sent to Davy Jones' locker. The ships, except possibly in one or two instances, are not in commission. A few caretakers are on each of the old vessels, for no further crew is necessary in their immediate cases. This means, of course, that virtually all the enlisted men today are employed on active ships, or on active duty on shore. The scrapping of the old-type vessels, therefore, will put out of present employment only a handful of American sail-

Among the other old vessels which are to be scrapped is the monitor, Miantonomah. Apparently nearly everybody thought that this monitor long ago had gone to the scrap heap, but she is in existence today and is in good condition after much more than a quarter of a century of service. There is not an officer or man in the navy who will not be glad that never again shall he be compelled to do service on an old-type monitor. A monitor's decks almost always are awash and the sleeping quarters, especially if the vessel is in tropic waters, are se bot as to make them almost unlivable

Water at 30 Cents a Gallon. At Cow Camp, the dryest point on the Silver Peak range, near Tonopah, Nev., water isn't quite up to the price of liquor, but it is almost there. They are paying 30 cents a gallon for it, and residents agree that it is cheap at the price. There isn't any competition. The water man has a monopoly and no one envies him his job.

The nearest watering place is eleven miles away. For five miles the water is carried in a buckboard drawn by horses. Then the road narrows to a trall and horses are unhitched, the water bags tied over their backs and the remainder of the trip is slow. It takes about a day to make the trip. In the old days, when salcons quenched water that there is now.

sisting of fish two years and oats one year, is reported by a resent writer ONE GOOD ONE

This is just what the man out of work is looking for. We can trade you this fine 30-acre farm, located about three miles west of Salem and about one mile south of State brick road; about half mile from good school; two-story five-room slate roof house; good bank barn with silo; all other necessary out-buildings; variety of fruit.

If this farm is sold at once, we can offer you Six cows, two head of young cattle, two horses, about 40 young chickens, and all farming implements necessary to use on the farm; also ensilage, hay and grain. The owner of this farm will consider a medium priced city property, as part pay, so if you have a city home at the right price, come in and trade for this farm, and you will not need to worry about a job, for you have it here. All for only $7,000. Come today and do not wait until tomorrow.

PLAN OF HARDING AROUSES INTEREST

TIONS MUCH DISCUSSED IN CAPITAL CITY.

FOREIGNERS DON'T COMMENT

Prefer to Await Action by Congress and the People-Japanese Prove Conciliatory and Optimism Prevails Concerning the Conference.

Washington. - Everybody in this town keen enough to take interest in anything is speculating on the future of President Harding's association of nations plan, for plan it most cer-

A few days have gone by since it became known that definiteness of purpose had found lodgment in the mind of the executive. There are Wilson men here who say it means a league of nations and there are anti-Wilson men who say that it means the same thing. The indefinite article "a" always is used, for even the admirers of Mr. Wilson's original scheme, and of the League as it exists, seem by common consent to evade the "the" which separates the Wilson plan from the apparent Harding plan.

The President has introduced nothing new to the public. He spoke during the presidential campaign of an association of nations, but before long he put the subject into the back of his head and kept it shut up there for some time, because the utterance apparently was not to the liking of certain elements which are a power in the United States senate and are supposed to be something of a power in a political campaign.

The foreigners here do not care to talk about the presidential utterance of recent date. Perhaps "dare" is a better word to use than "care," for probably they would like to talk about it, but they believe, and in fact some of them have said, that it would be diplomatically unwise. The visitors show on every occasion a marked disinclination to meddle in what they think are purely American affairs. One of them, voicing this feeling, said that foreign official comment was neither wise nor proper until congress and the people of the United States had given approval to anything which had been put forward in the way of Japanese Are Conciliatory.

These are days of continued optimism in Washington. The scare which came as a result of reported insurmountable obstacles in the path of conference progress has gone down the winds for a temporary stay at least. The Japanese seem to be in a particularly conciliatory and yielding mood just at present.

So far as the Japanese are concerned the truth seems to be that they have been conciliatory from the first. Their seeming insistence on a different ratio of battleship scrapping as between three powers apparently was more or less a preca sistence. They wanted to wait until they heard from home. The understanding is that in the committee which is discussing partial naval disarmament the Japanese are presenting almost staggering statistics to uphold rather a minor point in their arguments. It may be that they will gain the thing that they asked, for there are intimations that some of the American naval authorities are willing to admit that the Japanese claim is a small matter and that it will not change materially the original program. The Japanese are telling the Amer-Icans that they are perfectly willing to cut down to a defensive basis. They say that they are convinced that the United States has no offensive intention in mind and that it has proved the fact by the program of disarmament which it has prepared. The Japanese then add, however, that a proper defensive for themselves means that they must retain a ship or two which the Americans think should be scrapped.

Claim Based on Statistics.

It is on the statistics in the arguments which are advanced by the Japanese in committee meetings that they depend to make clear the ground work of their claim that under the proposed ratio they will not have an adequate force for purely defensive

If the Japanese can prove this to the satisfaction of America and Great Britain, they probably will be allowed to keep an additional ship or two, but if there is continued insistence by America and Great Britain that the original proposal will stand. the Japanese are going to yield and there does not seem to be the slightest doubt about the matter.

It is believed that the definite and final report on the limitation of naval armaments will be of the kind entirely satisfactory to the American state department, which means of course that it will satisfy the administration. Just how the naval officers down deep in their hearts feel about it is another matter. The intention is not to imply that the sailors are not for partial disarmament, but there is a feeling here that some of them seem to think that there have been too many concessions to the demand that things be scrapped.

MAKE SAVING A CERTAINTY

In a short time the little "S. & H." Green Stamp has made a long list of friends in Salem.

Each little book in the hand of a housewife means a careful, frugal head of the home.

Salem merchants showing the sign: "We Give 'S. & H.' Green Stamps" tell us this famous discount for eash is making friends at every tick of the clock, At the Redemption Station in the Spring-Holzwarth store, attendants say that "S. & H." Premiums make more friends in a minute than "S. & H." Stamps make in an hour.

So there you are. Satisfaction seems to be the keynote of each argument so from the combination we evolved the headline above.

The little "S. & H." Green Stamp wishes a most hearty Merry Xmas to all its Salem friends.

direction of the railroad to ship him to the city with other live stock. Almost hysterical Susie was speedily dashing down the road.

At length she reached the railroad; yes, there was poor faithful Dobbin being led up a slanting platform to a car. Wildly Susie dashed after him.

"Where are you taking our horse, our Dobbin!" she called, and then she sprang towards the animal clinging to his mane, kissing and caressing

"We are simply doing our duty and shipping the horse as directed," declared one of the men, and Susie learned that the destination was the livery stable of a man named Arnold Drury in the city, and boldly declared she would remain with Dobbin until she saw this Mr. Drury, who could not

People stared as the procession passed down a street leading to a great livery stable. Susie learned that a gentleman in a house nearby was Mr. Drury. His wife and daughter were with him and before them all Susie told her story. "Little one," he said, jotting down the town where she lived and covertly wiping away a tear, "we will attend to all this speedily. Get the child some thing to eat," he directed his wife, and an hour later she was the companion of Susie, homeward bound, after giving directions for the immediate return of old Dobbin. That was not all. Mrs. Burton quivered with delight, as glancing into the yard the next morning there was Dobbin all ready in the shafts for an early trip, and Susie went her rounds singing happily

The story of the old horse got about town and was the theme of many a fireside story amid interested home circles as the Christmas bells rang out Kriss Kringle sent the loyal Susie a full grist of gifts, and peace and hope. and happiness hovered over the little humble Burton home.
